

On Feelings

Because feelings form the underlying structural matrix of thought, they are the key to remembering, to recognizing patterns, and to generating new ideas.--William Gray